

When a new star floats into the field of vision of some watchful astronomer, the world honors the discoverer, gives the new star a fitting name, and records the addition to the sum of human knowledge gained by this discovery.

Yet of what small profit to humanity at large is this discovery? What will those cold star rays do for the sleepless sufferer who coughs and burns the long night through?

A far greater discovery for the sick is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, a remedy which has cured thousands of such sufferers. Obsolete and deep-seated coughs, bronchitis, weak and bleeding lungs and other conditions, which, if neglected, lead to consumption, are permanently cured by "Golden Medical Discovery." It contains no alcohol or other intoxicant, neither opium, cocaine nor other narcotic.

I had a terrible cough over a year ago and could not stop it, or even to do of good," writes J. M. Cameron, screen Co., Georgia. "I bought a bottle of your invaluable Golden Medical Discovery. It took half a bottle I was well."

Winter before this, my oldest boy (who is now nearly five years old) had a terrible cough; he had it the whole winter and all summer. Physicians did him no good, and nothing my wife and I could do did him any good. After your "Golden Medical Discovery" was brought to me, I wrote my wife to bring him back from the country, she having carried him there to see if the change would do him good. We were living in Savannah, Ga., at the time. She brought him back, and after giving him your great "Golden Medical Discovery" for a time he was entirely recovered.

"Jordan water is often used for baptism—always for royal baptisms—in England," says the London Chronicle. "Yesterday at the funeral of a lady in Abney Park cemetery one of the mourners at the words 'Earth to earth, ashes to ashes, dust to dust,' sprinkled on the coffin some gray earth from the olive garden on the Mount of Olives, just above Gethsemane—part of some earth which he had brought home last year to be used at his own interment."

A paper entitled "Shakespeare and Sanitation" was read at the recent provincial meeting of the Incorporated Society of Medical Officers of Health at Stratford on Avon. Among other things the author related the following: "It is interesting to find that the name of John Shakespeare, the father of the poet, first appears in records on the municipality as owing a fine of two-pence for having made a dirt heap with his neighbors, Adrian Quincey and Henry Reynolds, in Henley street, and on another occasion he 'stood amerced' in fourpence for failing to keep his gutter clean."

The regatta committee of the New York Yacht Club is making what is described as "official" use of the biograph, with a view to aiding in the settlement of disputes arising in case of fouling. Two cameras are maintained on the committee's boat, each capable of running five minutes consecutively, at the rate of thirty pictures a second, and in the event of any foul such as occurred in the Defender-Valkyrie races, the biograph camera will be turned on, and pictures taken as long as the referee directs. Pictures will also be made of the start and finish of each race, and the New York Yacht Club is to have a movie record of the races for its historical archives.

There are precedents in the history of international yacht racing for the results just reached in the contest between the Columbia and the Shamrock. A lack of wind and resulting failure of the contesting boats to finish in time have more than once marred a magnificent yachting pageant. An account says: "While hundreds of sailing and steam craft accompanied the boats, the first of the international yacht races between the Puritan and the Genesta in September, 1885, was in this way a failure. Neither boat was able to finish within the time limit, which was then seven hours, on account of the light wind and high sea. The Genesta, when signaled that it was no race was one mile and a half to leeward of the Puritan. Under wide spreads of canvas the Volunteer and Thistle waited in vain for a breeze on September 29, 1887. After cruising off the lights in a drizzling rain no start was made. The race was postponed until the following day. In the race between the Vigilant and the Valkyrie, during October, 1892, the boat twice failed to finish. After both yachts had rounded the stakeout in the first race and everybody's guess was started for home, the six-hour limit expired with the English racer in the lead. Although two miles ahead of the Vigilant, the Valkyrie could not finish. The Vigilant made the boat start but was baffled by a sudden shift of the wind. No sail was set after the fourth trial of the Vigilant and the Valkyrie. The American yacht capitulated and overhauled her opponent, but with seven minutes' lead at the time she could not home within six hours."

PHILIPPINE POLICY.

A special dispatch from Washington says that the sending of additional war vessels to the Philippines means the prosecution of a definite policy in the subjugation of the islands.

Experience has made it apparent that an immense army would have to be maintained and that it would take a long time to scour the islands and clean out all the insurgents. If the islands were swept across by our army like a prairie fire the insurrection might spring up again behind the devastating column, as it has in all the operations in the past. To put down the rebellion in all parts of the islands and establish perfect peace would be, it is believed, the work of a long period of time. The complete subjugation is expected to be accomplished, therefore, by slower approaches, each advance being made permanent.

By the co-operation of the increased naval force, it is proposed to establish and maintain the authority of the United States in the seaport cities and towns and then to gradually advance into the interior, establishing government authority at various important points as it can be maintained. The great difficulty in the past has been that towns being captured have afterward been abandoned and reoccupied by the insurgents, so that the advance of American authority has not been commensurate with the brilliancy of the operations of our military forces.

It is anticipated that with the co-operation of the navy the authority of the government can be established in the seaports, the source of supplies be cut off from the insurgents, good and liberal civil government given the people within the spheres of occupation, and the confidence of the natives under our immediate influence secured, while the insurgents will be crowded back to the interior and finally driven into the wilderness, as it were, and reduced to the condition of the North American Indian tribes if not compelled to yield at once.

When this government occupies the seaports and the important towns near the coast it will be felt that the authority of the government over the islands can be regarded as established, though rebel hands may still roam through the interior and bid defiance from a distance. In this work the navy is expected to be effective, the authority of the government being easily maintained in every place that can be put under the guns of our war vessels. This once accomplished, it is hoped that the American government will win the confidence of the natives, and that the good report of the new government will be spread abroad and incline those who are suffering the privations of the insurrection to accept the new and better order of things.

This does not signify the abandonment of the forward march of the army, but means an attempt at the firm fixing of the government authority as it advances. It is intended to make the seaports ours and then to close in upon the insurgents as rapidly as conditions admit, cleaning up the insurrection and holding everything taken as the army advances, until the insurgents are crowded into the narrowest possible limits and peace and good government is established wherever the American flag is planted.

WINE OF CARDUI

Woman Knows Woman.

Zenon, Kan., Jan. 31
I used Wine of Cardui for nervousness and weakness in the womb. After taking one bottle I was well again. I am a midwife and always recommend Wine of Cardui to my lady friends during pregnancy and after birth as a tonic. Every lady who takes it finds that it does even more than is claimed for it.
MRS. V. M. ROISVERT.

Nobody knows woman like woman. Men go to medical colleges, study books and listen to lectures. They learn indirectly of the diseases of women, but they are men and can never fully understand the ailments, the sufferings, the agonies of mothers, wives and sisters. A woman knows. Mrs. Roisvert knows. She has passed through the trials and tribulations of her sex. She has been near by when her sisters suffered. She has seen them relieved and cured with Wine of Cardui. Is it any wonder she recommends it? Is it any wonder that thousands of other women recommend it? They know. They have actual experience to prompt them. They spread the tidings from mouth to mouth, telling how Wine of Cardui helps young girls, helps the weak of all ages, helps and cures all womanly ills.

PUBLIC OPINION.

There are quite a number of patriots who are anxious to know when the home-starter is to be used on Mr. O. H. P. Belmont's key—Washington Post, Ind.

An indiscriminate war upon corporations have formed trusts is madness. What sort of a state would Indiana be today without a railroad? Yet, without corporations, it would have been impossible to build five miles of railroad—Indianapolis Journal.

In the eyes of Americans there is a good deal of resemblance between the present plight of the Boers and the status of the American colonists in 1775, except that the Boers have more independence at the start than the Americans had. Our colonists took up arms for the protection of their freedom and were successful. The Boers are taking up arms for exactly the same cause. How can Americans help siding with them and showing a lack of sympathy toward the British movement to coerce them?—Chicago Tribune, Rep.

It strikes us that those people who are predicting that the ship subsidy bill will go through the National House of Representatives with a rush in the coming session of Congress are leaving out of the account an important element in that body. The House is essentially changed from what it was in its immediate predecessor. In the former body the Republicans and six majority in the latter they have but fifteen. It would require but eight Republicans to vote against this bill now to defeat the measure. Considering the fact that an important Republican as Speaker Reed was against it in the fifty-fifth Congress, it is a fair presumption that it will have Republican opposition next winter. If friends are counting upon the absence of Mr. Reed now to work in its favor, they may find that he left an example behind him which operates without his presence.—Boston Herald, Dem.
